

TOTAL-LOSS VALUATION / SAMPLE CUSTOMER PACKET

Sample Venfour Total-Loss Review

Venfour helps a client understand the insurer's vehicle value, organize relevant evidence and ask clear questions. The client receives a shareable review, a prepared reconsideration request when supported, and guidance on the insurer's reply.

A challenge is prepared when the completed review supports one.

2020 Toyota RAV4 XLE AWD

80,000 miles / Chicago area, ZIP 60618 / Loss: September 2, 2026

Jordan Lee / Sample Insurer / Review: September 18, 2026

INSURER VEHICLE VALUE

$20,500

Vehicle value only

MEDIAN ASKING PRICE

$22,900

$22,400 - $23,400 range

ASKING-PRICE GAP

$2,400

Not a recovery estimate

Here, the insurer's $20,500 value is below all five asking prices, and a repeated condition deduction is unexplained. The evidence supports asking for reconsideration.

The $2,400 difference is an asking-price comparison, not a proven valuation error or recoverable amount. The evidence and calculations follow on pages 2-3.

All case data, records, listings, correspondence and outcomes are hypothetical. No real claim or live listings were used. This combined demonstration packet illustrates the review and related guidance; it is not an exact application export.

01 / REVIEW FINDINGS

What the insurer report leaves open

The hypothetical September 8 report (R1) values the vehicle at $20,500. Venfour reviews its vehicle details, comparable vehicles and disclosed adjustments alongside customer information and separate market evidence.

Subject: 2020 Toyota RAV4 XLE AWD, 80,000 miles. The customer reports normal pre-loss condition, no existing damage and standard XLE equipment. These facts are customer-reported; no physical inspection was performed.

Record	Mileage	Asking price	Mileage adjustment	Condition adjustment	Insurer-adjusted
I1	72,600	$22,000	-$400	-$1,100	$20,500
I2	88,000	$21,500	+$500	-$1,100	$20,900
I3	77,800	$21,300	-$100	-$1,100	$20,100

All three insurer comparables are 2020 RAV4 XLE AWD vehicles. Hypothetical USD amounts; other disclosed adjustments are $0. These are the insurer's adjustments, not independent Venfour adjustments.

Equal-weight mean: $($20,500 + $20,900 + $20,100) / 3 = $20,500$.

01 Condition: a repeated $1,100 deduction

The report gives no itemized basis for the same deduction on all three vehicles. Ask what it represents and what evidence supports it. Repetition alone does not establish an error.

02 Mileage: sensible direction, unclear method

The insurer subtracts for lower-mileage vehicles and adds for a higher-mileage vehicle. Ask how the amounts were determined; the report does not explain the method.

03 Market evidence: a difference worth explaining

All five asking prices on page 3 exceed the insurer's value. Ask the adjuster to address those records and any differences that affect the comparison.

Request the basis for the deductions and an updated valuation report or written explanation. Do not add $1,100 to the $2,400 asking-price gap: they examine the same valuation and may overlap.

02 / MARKET EVIDENCE

Comparable vehicles, clearly compared

Five separate hypothetical 2020 Toyota RAV4 XLE AWD vehicles match the subject. All five are assumed advertised on September 2 for illustration; no historical records were actually retrieved.

Record	Fictional listing source	Mileage	Distance	Asking price
H1	Sample dealer A	82,400	14 mi	$22,400
H2	Sample dealer B	78,900	22 mi	$22,700
H3	Sample dealer C	80,500	31 mi	$22,900
H4	Sample dealer D	75,300	48 mi	$23,200
H5	Sample dealer E	85,600	62 mi	$23,400

Distances are hypothetical miles from ZIP 60618. Sample IDs replace identifying VINs and listing details; there are no live listing links.

VEHICLE VALUE AND SELECTED ASKING PRICES / USD

The median gap is $$22,900 - $20,500 = $2,400$ (11.7%). The gap to the lowest asking price is $1,900. These comparisons support a review question, not a new appraised value or a promised increase.

The complete sample set excludes duplicates and the subject vehicle. Venfour ranks by similarity, not price. Current listings cannot verify loss-date prices.

Asking prices are not verified sales. No independent dollar adjustments for mileage, condition, equipment, location, certification or warranty. Condition and equipment may differ; this set is not the entire market.

03 / CUSTOMER RECONSIDERATION REQUEST

A specific request, ready to send

The client reviews the facts, recipient and attachments, then sends the request through their own email or insurer channel. This ready-to-send wording is for the hypothetical case only.

SUBJECTRequest to review vehicle valuation - claim SAMPLE-TL-2026-01

Hello Morgan,

Thank you for your help with my total-loss claim for my 2020 Toyota RAV4 XLE AWD. I reviewed the September 8 report and would appreciate another look at the $20,500 vehicle valuation.

The attached review includes five comparable vehicles with asking prices from $22,400 to $23,400 and a median of $22,900. The records relate to the September 2 loss date. I understand these are asking prices rather than verified sale prices, and vehicle differences may affect the comparison.

Could you please explain the $1,100 condition deduction applied to each comparable and the evidence supporting it? I reported normal pre-loss condition and no existing damage. I would also appreciate an explanation of the mileage adjustments.

Please reconsider the vehicle valuation in light of these records. If it remains unchanged, could you explain how the comparable vehicles were considered and which differences or adjustments support the result? An updated valuation report or written explanation would be helpful.

Thank you for your time and help,
Jordan Lee

After the client sends it

Attach the actual case review and supporting evidence, send the request, and mark it as sent in Venfour. Keep the sent copy. When the insurer replies, paste its response or upload the original and record any revised vehicle-value amount.

Never submit this sample packet or its invented records as evidence for a real claim.

04 / INSURER RESPONSE AND SUPPORTED FOLLOW-UP

A revised offer. A focused next question.

In this hypothetical continuation, the client saves the written reply and revised report with the original request and evidence. The original review supports continuation; the new reply and amount are readable and consistent.

SEPTEMBER 23 / HYPOTHETICAL INSURER REPLY

We revised the vehicle valuation to $21,300. The condition deduction is now $300 per comparable; other adjustments and weighting are unchanged. The condition adjustment reflects wear.

Revised report R2: I1 $21,300; I2 $21,700; I3 $20,900. Equal-weight mean: $21,300. These reproduce the insurer's revised figures; the original Venfour review is unchanged.

Addressed: the insurer reduces the condition deduction. Unresolved: the remaining $300 deduction, mileage method and treatment of the five market records still lack a specific explanation.

Supported next action: ask for the adjustment basis. The customer chooses to continue and prepares a follow-up using the saved evidence. This clarification does not amount to a recommendation to reject $21,300; the product has no clear accept-or-reject recommendation on this revised offer.

PREPARED FOLLOW-UP / CUSTOMER-REVIEWED EXAMPLE

Follow-up on vehicle valuation - claim SAMPLE-TL-2026-01

Hello Morgan,

Thank you for the revised report. I understand the vehicle valuation is $21,300.

You noted that the condition adjustment reflects wear. Could you please explain how the remaining condition and mileage adjustments were determined and how they apply to my vehicle?

I've attached the review again. Please reconsider the valuation in light of this evidence and send any updated report. If it remains unchanged, a brief explanation would help me understand.

Thank you for your help,
Jordan Lee

Customer-reviewed example of a supported follow-up. The client sends it, marks it as sent and adds any later reply to the case. No final outcome is assumed.

05 / FOR THE REFERRING ATTORNEY

A simple handoff for your client

The client works directly with Venfour on the vehicle-valuation review. You can share the customer-start link below; the client submits their insurer report and follows the guided process.

The report, evidence and prepared correspondence give the client a structured way to raise the property-damage valuation question. Counsel can review one organized record rather than assemble it from scattered documents.

The client reviews and sends insurer communications. Venfour does not negotiate directly with the carrier or accept an offer on the client's behalf.

$199 one-time / full review and report

No subscription. The customer starts with a free valuation and can proceed to the paid full review. A higher vehicle valuation or settlement is not guaranteed.

1. No supported dispute: automatic full refund

If the completed review does not reasonably support a dispute, the full fee is refunded automatically. The client keeps access to the completed review and report; no insurer request or final reply is required.

2. Supported dispute: final increase under $1,000

After sending the Venfour-supported request and evidence and following the process, the client may request a full refund if the final verified vehicle-value increase is less than $1,000. Provide final-outcome documentation and apply within 30 days of the insurer's final written response.

The threshold compares final vehicle value with the value at purchase, not the settlement check. An interim reply is not a final outcome; exactly $1,000 does not qualify for the manual path.

Complete refund policy: venfour.com/refund-policy

Share this link with your client

app.venfour.com/start?service=total-loss

Evidence review, not legal advice, an independent appraisal or a determination of what is owed. Taxes, fees, deductible, loan payoff and other settlement items are outside this sample's vehicle-value comparison.